

New Jobs Mean Service as Usual for Power Rental Customers

Stuart Group has acquired the assets and order book of Power4 from fox&cooper

It is just six weeks since the gates closed at Immingham based Power4 from Fox & Cooper. The company, who went into Administration on December 23rd 2009, has been acquired by Norfolk based Stuart Group Ltd and is now back in business – recruiting key staff to provide service levels to all customers, both existing and new.

Fox & Cooper were founded in 1976, and as recently as 2008 had won prestigious business awards. Specialists in generator rental including equipment designed for the hazardous areas of Oil Refinery shutdown maintenance and trackside solutions to rail operators, Power4 from Fox & Cooper had become a high profile victim of the lingering recession.

Stuart Group Ltd, an authorised FG Wilson dealer, has its Head Office with vast external storage area, warehousing and workshops, based in Attleborough in rural East Anglia. The 60-strong staff include a fully trained team of service technicians and engineers who provide a full 24-hour, 7-day week customer service call out support. Trading divisions of the group include: Stuart Power Ltd, Stuart Pumps Ltd, Stuart Well Services Ltd, GEK Generators, and Brownfield Asset Developments.

Stuart Group Ltd was established in 1982 and has expanded to become one of the largest privately owned independent power generation rental businesses in the UK.

The addition of the North-Lincolnshire based company will increase the coverage of Stuart Group, particularly in Eastern England, but also throughout the UK. Through this increased presence of the Group, service levels will be enhanced for all customers.

At the outset of this new venture, key operational staff have been recruited at the Immingham location to ensure that service levels and commitment to quality continue to satisfy customer needs, whilst financial and administration issues will initially be addressed from the Head Office in Norfolk.

Retention of the trading name and existing premises are seen as Stuart Group's commitment to existing customers, whilst it is the company's intention to further develop the business to deliver and exceed customer expectations.
